DOVE TALKS

Dove Talks, CVIC's educational, grant-funded YouTube series hosted by President/CEO Coiya Tompkins Inman, began in fall of 2022. The series is a bountiful resource to learn more about CVIC, its services, community partnerships, events, experiences of real clients, and more!

These short videos, usually 5-8 minutes, feature a conversation style interview, and are a concise and interactive way to convey a burst of information in a bite-sized format. Dove Talks episodes are shared with partners, donors, community members and new staff to educate on the many facets of CVIC's holistic approach to ending the complicated issue of interpersonal violence.

At the heart of Dove Talks are CVIC's core pillars of safety, healing, and education/prevention. These pillars are interwoven into every aspect of the work CVIC does, from providing immediate safety and support to survivors, to offering evidence-based therapy services that foster healing, to engaging in proactive education and prevention efforts aimed at stopping violence before it starts. Through this series, viewers gain a deeper understanding of how these pillars guide and empower our mission to create a community free from violence.
